Potomac, MD Based Custom Builder Wins National Award for Design

Indian Wells, CA — Rosenthal Homes a Potomac, MD based company specializing in Custom Homes, Renovations and Additions was awarded a 2004 Pacesetter Award for Design. Co-sponsored by Custom Home Magazine, “The Pacesetter Awards honor the highest achievers in the business of building custom homes.” This years 10th Anniversary Awards Luncheon was held in Indian Wells, CA during the National Association of Homebuilders Custom Builder Symposium.

Custom Home Magazine Senior editor Bruce Snider notes, “It may be dangerous to say so, but custom homes designed by independent architects generally hold the aesthetic edge over design/build projects. On the Other hand, the design/build process typically gives clients better control of the budget. Andy and Emily Rosenthal combine the best of both worlds, matchmaking their clients with local architects they and trust and shepherding them through design, product selection, and construction with the attentiveness that matches the best design/build firms.

Emily Rosenthal, vice president and co-owner said, “We are extremely proud of this award because it specifically recognizes the collaboration, communication, hands on approach and personal style we use with our clients to form a partnership that creates a home of their dreams. Rosenthal Homes president, Andy Rosenthal adds, “It is very much an honor to receive a national award like a Pacesetter as a small volume local builder...It makes me very proud of both the work we have done the potential we have to serve our clients even better in the future.”

Rosenthal Homes has been crafting fine custom homes, renovations, and additions in the Washington, DC area for well over a decade. The company is owned and operated by Emily and Andy Rosenthal in Potomac, MD.
